THE STRIKE SITUATION

Cannon Belonging to Walston Rioters Confiscated by Troops.

FOREIGNERS MAY HAVE TO GO.

It Is Reported That Certain Operators Will Ignore This Element and Employ Only the English Speaking Men—Notes from Various Districts.

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., June 23.—The situation at Walston can only be likened to the calm after a storm. The arrival of the state troops promptly put a quietus to the rash schemes and mad desires of the foreigners. While "beating up the bush" the formidable looking cannon were discovered. These cannon are objects of curiosity. They are made out of three iron wrought iron pipe, placed in the butt end of a green oak tree, the whole being firmly bound together with iron. When examined the cannon were found to be loaded with spikes and ready for firing, the charges being fifteen inches deep.

The Bell, Lewis & Yates company have given out that they intend to start their mines immediately. They have offered the English speaking men thirty-five cents net, five cents below the price offered them last week, when a settlement was talked of. It is currently reported that the company do not intend to keep the foreigners. This report is considered authentic, and is looked upon with favor by many, but some of the English speaking men say that the foreigners have stood by them in this strike, and if they should be discarded and left out entirely nothing but death will keep them from wreaking direful vengeance upon both the English and the company.

The miners held a meeting in the afternoon and unanimously resolved to stay out and starve rather than to accept the thirty-five cent rate and adopted another resolution to stand out for forty-five cents, being five cents more than they agreed to on a compromise. The miners generally are very much incensed at the action of Sheriff Gourley in having the troops ordered out.

Miners' Delegate Convention.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., June 23.—The miners' delegate convention was attended yesterday by forty-four delegates. G. H. Hampton was elected secretary to succeed David Darby, resigned. President Garrett addressed the meeting, and maintained the ranks of the strikers are unbroken. He admitted that a large number of ovens are in blast, but held that the new men shipped into the region would not stay. He advised the continuation of the strike, and resolutions to that effect were passed. A resolution was also passed advocating the withdrawal of the strikers from the region in a body if their demands are not granted. The old men at Youngwood plant held a meeting in the afternoon and voted to return to work. The plant will probably resume on next Monday.

President McBride Denounced.

STREATOR, Ills., June 23.—The convention of the miners of northern Illinois district, after a two days' session, passed a resolution denouncing President McBride and voted to stay out for last year's prices. The operators were invited to meet with the delegates but refused, saying they would abide by the Columbus scale.

Return to Work as Individuals.

DECATUR, Ills., June 23.—The miners here voted to return to work as individuals. The company has employed 250 men, who went to work this morning. Officers of the company refused to say what the men are to get.

Ohio Operators Will Resume.

MASSILLON, O., June 23.—The Massillon coal operators announced their intention of resuming in the mines throughout the district with old men, if possible, if not then with new. Sixty cents will be paid.

Will Resume on Monday.

MINONK, Ills., June 23.—The Minonk miners held a meeting and decided to go to work Monday.

Attacked His Mother-in-Law.

BALTIMORE, June 23.—Augustus Krebs has been released on $1,000 bail for court by Justice Schenkel charged with breaking his mother-in-law's left temporal bone with a blow of his fist. The wife and mother-in-law said that Krebs came home the other night intoxicated and brought with him a big, ugly looking dog. The mother-in-law said the dog should not stay in the house when Krebs remarked that the dog had more sense than his mother-in-law and knocked her down with his fist, breaking the bone in her head.

Pittsburg Police Officials Arrested.

PITTSBURG, June 23.—J. O. Brown, chief of the department of public safety; Roger O'Mara, superintendent of police, and W. C. McKelvey, inspector of police, were arrested, charged with misdemeanor in office. The suit is the result of the prosecution of a woman named Dorsey for keeping a disorderly house, and was entered by her attorneys. They were held in $1,000 bail for a hearing on Wednesday next. Sensational developments are promised when the cases come to trial.

Drowned While Bathing.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 23.—G. O. Rosado, a resident graduate of Eastman's college, was drowned while bathing in the Hudson river last evening. He was in swimming with a party of college chums and was taken with cramps. Rosado, who was 25 years old, was the son of a prosperous planter of Honduras, Central America. His body has not yet been recovered.

The earlier symptoms of dyspepsia, heartburn and occasional headaches, should not be neglected. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla to be cured.

Go by the book on Beecham's Pills.

A FIREMAN'S TIMELY ACT.

He Saves the Life of a Little Tot by Kicking It from the Track.

ELKTON, Md., June 23.—A thrilling experience was that of Engineer Grauss and Fireman Nelson, in the Central Division railroad paytrain, which passed through Rising Sun, Cecil county, Md. David Maher's 3-year-old son was on the track the day the paytrain came along and was bewildered when the engineer gave the warning signal. To stop the train in time to avoid fatality was impossible. Fireman Nelson sprang through the lookout window, ran along the footboard and swinging from the pilot table kicked the child in the forehead and knocked it into the ditch along the track. On the return trip the train stopped and the little fellow was found playing in the yard, on his forehead the mark of the fireman's shoe, made when he kicked him over and saved his life.

Probably Cut His Wife's Throat.

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., June 23.—The authorities have Charles Marschen, of Cinnaminson, in the county jail here, on suspicion of having cut his wife's throat. The wound is a dangerous one. The woman cannot tell how it happened. The prisoner claims the cut was caused by a horse hitting the woman. This is improbable because of the nature of the wound.

Miners Fatally Burned.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., June 23.—John Brelham and David [illegible], two miners in Cameron colliery, were terribly burned and mutilated by the explosion of a keg of powder while at work yesterday. Their clothes were burned from their bodies, and one [illegible] and his brother. Both men will die.

Everybody Likes

to be called handsome, especially the young ladies. But that is simply impossible as long as their face is covered with blotches and sores. But wait, there is no need of this; one or two bottles of sulphur bitters will remove all such disfigurations, and make your face fair and rosy.—Fannie Bell, Editress.

BOLTON, Conn.—I am very much pleased with the effect of your Simmons Liver Regulator, and have recommended it to a great many friends.—E. A. Rose. Your druggist sells it in powder or liquid. The powder to be taken dry or made into a tea.

A RUNAWAY TRAIN

An Engineer Thrown from His Cab While on Duty.

NEW YORK, June 23.—Engineer Floyd Pollison, of the Deckertown express, on the New York, Susquehanna and Western railroad, and the one that collided with a trolley car at Paterson the other day, was thrown from his cab yesterday, and for several minutes the train dashed down the grade on the other side of Oakridge without a hand on the engine's throttle or anyone to look ahead for danger.

The grade from Two Bridges down the mountain for twenty miles is very steep, and engineers frequently apply the air brakes to keep their trains under control. While taking this precaution at a sharp curve west of Oakridge Pollison became convinced that the brake on the tender of his engine was out of order. He jumped to the floor of the tank, and while leaning far out to peer at the brakes he was struck by the upright post of an automatic time signal. The blow knocked him from his engine and threw him away from the wheels down the bank, twenty-five feet high.

Fireman Michael Collins, ignorant of the accident, continued at his duties. The train in the meantime was dashing down the grade at an unusual rate of speed. Everyone of the passengers were in peril without knowing it. When nearing Oakridge one of the train's crew called the attention of Fireman Collins to the fact that Pollison was not in his seat in the cab. The fireman looked around hurriedly, and then realizing that there must have been an accident, quickly stopped the train. The engineer was found lying beside the track in a dazed condition. The doctors say his injuries are not fatal, but it will be some time before he will be able to resume work.

Suspected of Murdering Her Husband.

GREENVILLE, Tex., June 23.—J. J. Lancaster, a new arrival here, died last Sunday night under peculiar circumstances, nobody being present but his wife. The physicians examining him after his death testified at the inquest that he died from poisoning. His wife made conflicting statements at the inquest and was suspected of having murdered her husband. A report is current that Mrs. J. J. Lancaster is now in Paducah, Ky., and that the woman passing as Mrs. Lancaster here is a woman who induced Lancaster to leave Kentucky. Mrs. Lancaster was locked up in the county jail.

Suicide by Drowning.

BURLINGTON, N. J., June 23.—Marshall R. Smith committed suicide by drowning himself in the Delaware yesterday. He was formerly a Methodist preacher and also a lawyer in New York state, and it is thought that the loss of his fortune and of a capital case in which he was counsel unbalanced his mind. Smith was out boating, and sent a letter to his wife telling her of his intended suicide and of the whereabouts of his boat. A searching party found the boat as anticipated with Smith's clothes, but the body has not been recovered.

Arkansas River Leaves Its Banks.

WICHITA, Kan., June 23.—Arkansas river broke its banks here last night. A deep swift current is now flowing over Riverside park and the adjoining residence portion of the town. The water is rising rapidly and another two feet will send it sweeping down Main street. The lower floors of many houses are already under water, and people are [illegible] leaving their property [illegible]. The farmers have already suffered an immense loss through the destruction of their crops and stock.

Badly Beaten by Burglars.

ELIZABETH, N. J., June 23.—At 2 o'clock in the morning six unknown men entered the Watchung Club house in Fanwood for the purpose of robbery. They aroused P. Gurr, the manager of the club. A hand to hand encounter took place during which one of the men felled Gurr to the floor, probably fracturing his skull. He was found later in a pool of blood by neighbors. The men escaped.

Insurgents Again Defeated.

BUENOS AYRES, June 23.—News has been received that the loyal troops in Rio Grand do Sul, Brazil, have defeated the insurgents under General Tina.

The BREATH of a chronic catarrh patient is often so offensive that he becomes an object of disgust. After a time ulceration sets in, the spongy bones are attacked, and frequently destroyed. A constant source of discomfort is the dripping of the purulent secretions into the throat, sometimes producing inveterate bronchitis, which is usually the exciting cause of pulmonary disease. The brilliant results by its use for years past, properly designate Ely's Cream Balm as by far the best and only cure. Call upon your druggist for it.

ANTI-OPTION PASSED.

The Bill Adopted in the House by a Vote of 149 to 87.

SENATORS IN VERY BAD HUMOR.

During the Debate on the Income Tax in the Senate Messrs. Hill and Harris Engage in an Exchange of Personalities.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The house adopted the anti-option bill yesterday by a vote of 149 to 87. The last day of the contest was much more interesting than the previous days of debate. During the two hours allowed for amendments a number were offered, many of which were accepted by the committee of the whole, but when final action came in the house all amendments were rejected and the bill passed in its original form, except that flour was placed among the commodities affected by the bill.

An analysis of the vote by which the bill was passed showed 94 Democrats, 47 Republicans and 8 Populists—total 149—in favor of the bill, and 61 Democrats and 26 Republicans—total 87—against it. Although it was nearly 5 o'clock when the anti-option bill was disposed of the general deficiency appropriation bill was taken up.

The debate on the income tax in the senate yesterday consumed nine hours, and was marked by some very interesting and sensational incidents. Only one set speech was made, that by Mr. Patton, of Michigan, the remainder of the time being consumed in extemporaneous debate. Perhaps it was the extreme heat of the chamber, the thermometer was dancing around the ninety point throughout the day, which had a bad effect upon the temper of the senators, but at any rate the ill humor was exhibited by almost every one who spoke.

Mr. Teller (Colo.) was the only senator from his side of the chamber who made an argument in support of the income tax provision. Mr. Sherman (O.) opposed it in a brief but vigorous speech. Mr. Allen, the Nebraska Populist, in the course of his argument in favor of the bill, drifted into the discussion of the domination of the money power in this country, and hurled charges right and left at both the Democratic and Republican parties. Mr. Hill (N. Y.), who is bearing the brunt of the opposition to the income tax proposition, was alert and vigilant all day attacking it at every vulnerable point.

The sensational incident of the day grew out of an attempt on the part of Mr. Harris, the Democratic manager of the tariff bill, to force Mr. Hill to reply to some of the arguments made after the usual hour of adjournment. Mr. Hill resented this as an attempt to crowd and embarrass him because he had been the only outspoken opponent of the bill upon the Democratic side, calling attention to the fact that the courtesy he asked had never up to that time been refused.

Mr. Harris and Mr. Hill became involved in a heated controversy, which finally ended in an exchange of personalities, in which Mr. Hill referred to the "plantation manners" of the senator from Tennessee and Mr. Harris responded in kind by referring to the manners of the "slums of New York."

Mr. Hill, however, was victorious, and shortly after 7 o'clock Mr. Harris was obliged to yield to an adjournment. When he did so he gave notice that he would hold the senate in continuous session today until the bill was disposed of.

A Colored Husband by Mistake.

BALTIMORE, June 23.—Amelia West, the adopted daughter of Michael Missnett, who was the cause of the killing of Missnett by Thomas Jones, now on trial at Towson, startled the court in her testimony by saying that she had married a colored man named Thomas E. Hall, thinking he was white, but had never lived with him. She said Jones knew this, and that knowledge gave him a hold on her and led to the continuation of an unlawful intimacy.

Dr. Kremien on the Stand.

BALTIMORE, June 23.—Dr. John D. Kremien, on trial for the murder of John Ferre by poisoning, yesterday testified in his own defense. He said he diagnosed Ferre's illness as pneumonia and treated him accordingly. He explained the presence of corrosive sublimate by saying that at the autopsy he had a sponge saturated with it, and when blood flowed the undertaker wiped it away with the sponge. He denied knowledge of Ferre's wealth before the death.

A Caterpillar Plague.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., June 23.—Cripple Creek district is suffering from a caterpillar plague. In the vicinity of Four Mile they have eaten all the leaves off the aspen trees. The cuts in the wagon roads are filled up with the worms, which are of the common [illegible] variety. At the bottom of abandoned prospect holes they lie two feet deep.

CLARKSON, N. Y., Nov. 1892.—"I have used Gilmore's Aromatic Wine in my family, and for a debilitated system there is nothing to equal it in restoring vigor and strength, and for female weakness it stands without a rival. CAMDENITES MAY GO DRY.

Defective Applications for Liquor Licenses Cause Anxiety.

CAMDEN, N. J., June 23.—There is every reason to believe that on and after July 1 this city will be an exceedingly dry one. All the applications for licenses are now in. The temperance people have made a strong fight to have the license fee increased and the number of saloons cut down. While examining the applications for licenses it was found that in some cases the same name was signed to a number of applications as endorsee. The law prohibits this and makes the application in such a case void. This portion of the law was recently contested and the court held it to be good.

The law further provides that in the case of the failure of an application through any cause the same person shall not renew the application for the same place inside of a year. The same person may, however, ask for a license for another place. The licenses now in force expire on June 30, and it is thought every saloon in the city must close on that night and remain closed.

A Sensational Arrest.

BERLIN, June 23.—As the result of detective work by the kaiser, Court Chamberlain Von Kotze has been arrested for sending scurrilous, anonymous letters through the mail making scandalous accusations against many high personages. The arrest caused a great sensation. Since Von Kotze's arrest four letters have been received by different aristocrats, written in exactly the same tenor as those which Von Kotze is charged with writing. The signature is also the same. Under the circumstances it is impossible that Von Kotze could have been the author of the four letters.

Sad Double Drowning Accident.

PITTSBURG, June 23.—A sad case of double drowning took place yesterday at the Forty-third street bridge in Lawrenceville. Henry and Andrew Lear, aged 12 and 10 respectively, were in bathing, when Andrew got beyond his depth. Neither boy could swim, but Henry bravely went to the rescue of his brother. The little fellow, who was sinking, clasped his arms around the other's neck and both were drowned. Fifteen minutes later their bodies were recovered, still clasped tightly in each other's embrace.

The Strike in Indiana Declared Off.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., June 23.—The miners' strike so far as it relates to Indiana was formally declared off last night at the state convention of block and bituminous miners, the delegates representing the 8,000 of this state. It was also decided that for day men in Indiana three tons of screened coal constitute a day's work. The sentiment was so strong against the officers who signed the Columbus scale that no effort was made by ex-President Dunkerly's friends to reinstate him.

New Bicycle Records.

ROME, N. Y., June 23.—The sixth annual tournament and championship race meet of the Rome cyclers took place at Riverside park yesterday. Two New York state records were broken. Johnson lowered the best time for a half mile, flying start, from the record of 1:02 2-5 made by himself and also by F. J. Jenny to 59 3-5 seconds. Sanger rode out a mile flying start, in 2:01 flat, breaking his own best New York state record of 2:05 2-5.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Bradstreets' and Dun's Review of the State of Trade.

SOME IMPROVEMENTS NOTICEABLE.

A Notably Favorable Feature Is the Practical Ending of the Coke and Coal Strikes, Which Will Put to Work 250,000 Men.

NEW YORK, June 23.—Bradstreets' review of the state of trade says: There are indications of a moderate improvement in various lines and enough instances to render the fact of some significance. A notable favorable feature is the practical ending of the coke and coal strikes, together with those in related industries, which will put to work at once, or soon, more than 250,000 men. The number of employes in industrial lines still on strike is estimated at about 30,000. There are sales by jobbers in staple lines for future delivery where nothing save a hand-to-mouth business has been reported for weeks. At points tributary to Kansas City and St. Louis grain harvesting is under full headway, the condition of wheat is excellent and demand for money to move the crop marked and the supply abundant.

The settlement of the coal strike produces a more hopeful feeling at Pittsburg. Baltimore merchants report the south holding orders more than previously. Eight western cities agree that a better feeling prevails in business circles, and that the outlook for improved fall trade has increased. This is true at Cincinnati and Detroit, where good weather has stimulated sales in dry goods and other lines and at Louisville, which reports a corresponding improvement and sales by jobbers for future delivery. St. Louis advises that seasonable goods are in better demand and that the end of strikes has resulted in a better feeling.

R. G. Dun & Co's review says: The week has been rich in promise, but poor in performance. It was confidently promised that exports of gold would cease, but they have not. It was promised that the end of the coal strike would bring immediate recovery of industries but partial resumption of work discloses comparative scantiness of demand for product.

Operations in wheat advanced the price one and three fourth cents, though western receipts were only 1,381,510 bushels against 2,969,189 last year and Atlantic exports only 565,541 bushels against 2,802,096 last year. Corn advanced, but again receded with small exports and fairly large receipts. Cotton declined a sixteenth but recovered, the visible stock of American here and abroad is 2,519,990 bales against 2,832,073 last year, and there is every reason to expect an increased yield.

It was confidently expected that the settlement of tariff rates on textiles by the senate would improve the condition of textile manufacturers. But there is scarcely any evidence of such a result as yet, the large sales of cottons being distinctly traceable to more favorable weather and larger retail sales and to further concessions by sellers. The stock of unsold print cloths at Providence, Fall River and Boston is over a million pieces, but the accumulation continues. Woolens are irregular in price.

Wool is less active and rather weaker, with sales about equal to half a full consumption, 1,332,541 pounds against 2,000,[illegible] for the same week last year, and 5,12[illegible] [illegible] of June the [illegible] pounds against [illegible].

There is much disappointment that the partial resumption of the coal strike does not promptly enlarge the demand for iron and steel products, which is evidently too narrow as yet to support much increase of production.

Failures during the week are 214 in the United States against 275 last year and 38 in Canada against 14 last year.

A CANADIAN TWILIGHT.

The white mists gather on marsh and fen,
And down by the river's edge
The tide is lapping the fibrous grass,
And the shafts of sea green sedge,
Away in the west the sunset glow
Fades out of the cold gray sky,
And up from the reeds that bend and quake,
Comes the red necked loon's weird cry,
"Oh-oo-whi-oo-who-wi, whi-oo — who-wi,
whi-oo—who-wi!"

The fisher boats in the lonely bay
Lie anchored serene and still,
A red light gleams like a far faint star
From the dim crest of the hill,
The wind through the high limbed poplar trees
Is sweet as some quaint old tune,
Yet sadder, sweeter than crooning wind,
Pipes the single red necked loon,
"Oh-oo-whi-oo-who-wi, whi-oo — who-wi,
whi-oo—who-wi!"

From shadowless heights the night creeps down
And muffles the sounding shore,
The still white boats gleam spectral and thin,
And the red light shows no more.
Yetever across the darkening world
Creeps the river's monotone,
And the pensive, plaintive murmuring
Of the red necked loon alone,
"Oh-oo-whi-oo-who-wi, whi-oo — who-wi,
whi-oo—who-wi!"

—Youth's Companion.

BY MERE CHANCE.

With a gesture of annoyance, he flung his pen upon the table.

"It is useless! I shall never succeed in describing this scene until I have actually experienced it," he said to himself.

An ordinary, common or garden writer of short stories would never have taken the matter so to heart. But he, Paulus Frank, the apostle of realism, could never allow a story with description in it that was not true to life go into the ruthless hands of the critics.

The plot of his novel was certainly simple enough. Two jealous, spiteful women had entered into a plot against the noble, innocent heroine of the tale.

By every possible means they sought to destroy her position in the eyes of her husband and those of the world. They finally agreed upon the plan of sending an anonymous letter to her husband, wherein they accused the wife of faithlessness.

Paulus Frank cultivated close relations with a man whom he had selected as the model for this hero and often invited him for that reason to his house.

He had just reached the point where he had to describe how this man, who was naturally cold blooded, stands before his wife with a deadly pallor on his face and confronts her with the letter, threatening to shoot her unless she makes a frank confession of the whole transaction.

And it was just this scene that Paulus Frank felt himself powerless to describe.

Would the wife defend herself with vigor and spirit against such an attack, or would she merely allow herself a contemptuous little laugh when brought face to face with the calumny?

Would her insulted and innocent heart rise in indignant protest against such gross accusation, or would she merely let the matter drift on and make no further explanation than a quiet denial?

What expression would her face wear? Would she turn deadly pale or wear the flush of shame? Would her hands pluck nervously at her little lace handkerchief, or would she stand motionless and erect before him as if turned into stone under his very eyes?

And the answer to all these questions he did not find readily in his mind. Inspiration had left him in the lurch. Twenty times and more he strove to put on the paper the powerful scene which was to be the climax of his story.

But it was in vain, for success did not shine upon him, and he became more and more certain that he would only be able to portray the scene with justice and power when he had actually been through it himself and felt every phase of emotion recorded in lines of fire on his heart.

Once this peculiar thought had taken possession of him he was unable to rest until he saw it realized.

It came to him one morning with such force that he let his fist fall upon the table with a bang that almost shattered the glasses.

"Have you gone crazy?" cried his pretty young wife, raising her clear blue eye to his face. "What's the matter? Ever since you began that wretched novel of yours you seem to be quite a different man."

And as he only stared at her and made no answer she went on to reproach him soundly for his conduct.

"It cannot continue like this," she concluded. "It must stop before long," and then buried herself again in her work.

At the same moment the servant appeared on the scene with the announcement that the apothecary was at the door.

A young man entered and greeted the husband and wife with the familiarity of an old acquaintance. Frank returned his greeting, then looked vacantly before him and appeared to interest himself deeply in the pattern of the tablecloth.

The young man looked at him inquiringly for a few minutes, and then, approaching the young wife, pressed her hand and asked her in a low voice what was so occupying her husband's mind.

"Ach, how do I know?" she replied, with a gesture of impatience. "I only know that for a whole week he has not been fit to live with."

A deep drawn breath, a shrug of her shoulders, and Mrs. Frank went with her guest on the veranda to look out into the street.

Meanwhile Frank had gone to his study with pleasure written all over his face. At length he seemed to have found a way out of his difficulty. He wavered, however, undecided for a little while. But why not? What harm was there?

Besides it was not possible in any other way. He would be obliged to write a plain, accusatory letter to his wife, but then he would confess it all afterward and ask her forgiveness.

Thus there could be no further harm attaching to his plan, and he would be freed of all difficulty and be able to describe the scene with powerful realism.

He could not understand why the idea had not occurred to him sooner. It was so simple and so natural, and there seemed to be absolutely no other escape from his difficulty.

Thank goodness the time was now approaching when he would be able to hear the bitter protest of the innocent and calumniated wife.

Forthwith he was anxious to execute his design, but his heart beat a little faster at the thought of it. With difficulty he wrote a few lines in an altered handwriting, which interpreted in a pitiable way the accusation of the wife whom he adored and loved. And in order to make the deception more complete he added thereto the initials of the name of her supposed lover and traducer.

For this purpose he selected the name of the young apothecary who had only a few minutes before come to his house on a visit.

"It is true, I know, that my wife cannot endure him," he said to himself, "but what of that? The scene will be all the more natural and powerful."

Yet somehow as he wrote the address on the envelope—his own address—a sad feeling stole over him.

"Some things cause pain even in joke," he murmured to himself. "How thankful I am for my wife's stainless character!"

And with trembling fingers he finished the writing. Then he weighed carefully in his mind what the next step should be and finally carried it to the postoffice himself.

All was going splendidly. In the evening they intended to go to the theater, so that she would find this letter, on which so much depended, among her other papers and letters when they got home again. The whole scene would be acted at night just as in real novel. It was splendid.

When they came out of the theater, it was already late.

"After midnight," remarked Frank as they passed the tall clock in the hall.

He asked the maidservant who opened the door for them if there were any letters, and she gave him those that had come while they had been at the theater.

While his wife sank with a tired sigh into an armchair and untied her veil he remained standing and ran his eye over the addresses.

Suddenly something seemed to strike him. He raised his eyebrows slightly, and casting a stern glance in the direction of his wife tucked the correspondence under his arm, bade her good night and went abruptly into his study.

The young wife observed him narrowly, drew a deep breath as her custom was and shook her head. She did not ask him whether there were any letters among his own, and he of course did not tell her.

Then she took her candle from the servant girl and walked slowly toward her bedchamber.

Once in his workroom Frank indulged in a contented little laugh. At last the goal was in sight. In a few moments he would know all he wanted to know! Yes, all, and he laughed again. Then it would be easy for him to describe the scene from beginning to end in a masterly manner.

Just a little more patience, and her maid will have left her. Going up and down in his room, he calculates what effect will be produced on the world by his novel, drawn in the most realistic manner from nature itself.

"I wonder what makes her so slow tonight?" he said to himself.

In the stillness of the night he could hear the sounds of their voices. Then he heard her lay down her rings on the marble slab of the dressing table. Thereupon the clear sounds of her merry laughter floated through the air to his ears.

"Today of all days she seems to take so long," he murmured to himself.

A little while longer he walked up and down the room with excited brain. Then he heard the opening and shutting of the door and steps dying away in the distance.

"At last!" he exclaimed, with a sigh.

Softly and with great caution he pressed the door handle, walked lightly through the toilet room into the sleeping room and entered with such suddenness and violence that the young wife cried aloud with fear and astonishment.

"How you frightened me! Have you gone crazy?"

He made no answer, but stood in silence, watching carefully every gesture that she made and every change of expression that crossed her face.

Then in measured steps and with a pale, earnest face he approached her.

The fair young wife sat bolt upright in bed.

The night candle burned brightly on the table beside her.

With trembling, feverish hands he held out the terrible letter to her.

"There! Read that!" he cried in an angry, pained tone of the outraged, injured husband.

The woman turned suddenly to a deathly pallor. She seized the letter hastily and cast a rapid glance over it.

For a moment she raised her eyes to her husband's face, but only for a moment, for she immediately again read over the letter that she held in her trembling hand.

"I know all!" he added quietly, watching every movement she made. "I know it all!" he repeated louder and in sullen anger.

She made no reply. Her mouth twitched nervously, her eyelids dropped, and with a wild cry of hysterical anguish she slipped out of the bed and flung herself at his feet. The amazed husband looked on with a dull sensation of horror in his heart, while she clung to his knees, and with an agonized voice groaned aloud:

"Forgive me! Forgive me!"—From the German.

WOLF & KLOHS.

MR. WILSON TALKS.

My Name is Wilson; I do an insurance business on LaSalle street, in Chicago Ill., and I live in Evanston, Ill. Evanston is what was originally a scattering population on a pretty point on Lake Michigan, esteemed years ago far from the city of Chicago, but now one of the varied towns which may go within it by vote of the population.

I am married and have a wife and one child. That child is a boy (I suppose I should feel the same solicitude if it was a girl), and I have a father's natural fancies as to what must be the best thing to give that child the right kind of intelligence, and so divert his course that he may succeed in life. I have studied a great deal upon the subject. My own experience would not be of great value, because I have succeeded only to the limit of the average man and am barely established; still, I own the house and lot upon which I live, and am feeling perfectly safe in meeting the exigencies of the year. I want the boy to take a broader view than I did, to be a bigger man in the world. I have studied how to teach him to do that, and he has done pretty well, as far as the preliminaries go. Now, I have thought over what I should say to him and have sometimes been puzzled. I could not very well tell him what to do. I wanted to tell him what I needed but what I did not learn myself when I was of his age, and what my father did not know how to tell me, or else was not thoughtful enough to do so. I wanted to tell him how to follow the example of those who have succeeded at the present time and under the circumstances which ordinarily affect a young man struggling in this Republic established on this comparatively new world to-day. I wanted to tell him just what he had better do to get along well, and to point out to him what had been done by the people who were successful at the present time.

Of course, the record of the people of any time past would not be of so much value, because circumstances must necessarily have been different when they were alive. I feel confident, though, that if I could learn, some way and somehow, what the people who are so successful to day have done and how they did it, I could give to my boy such advice as would make his own life at least as far removed from failure as justified by the natural ability he may possess,

I looked around for some authority which I might consult in order to give him the facts most essential with this idea of mine in mind, but I could find none until I discovered that a great publishing firm in Chicago had decided to bring out a book giving the photographs of all the people who are prominent in America to-day. Here was what I wanted. The book, as I have learned, is going to be published in 16 parts, 16 pages to each, with a recent photograph on each page of some active leading American man or woman of to-day, while underneath appears the story of that same person's life—the story telling what that person did, and how the ends attained were eventually accomplished. Here was what I wanted; here was what I needed in various ways; here was what I was certainly seeking in order to obtain the information with which to educate my boy and secure for him that knowledge which will give him a source of thought and make him prominent in the world.

I have the first sheets of this work. It is a graphic story of America's Greatest Men and Women, told in each instance on a single page underneath a photograph of recent date, which conveys to the eye an idea of what that person is. To me the photograph tells even more than the suggestive record beneath; and yet it is odd how in each instance the correct story corresponds with the expression upon the face which is reproduced in the portrait above. I do not know how the series will end. I know very little about this new feature of the newspaper people; I know nothing about the publishers and their expectations, but I do know this: that if the series so begun should be continued to its practical, ordinary good sense end—and I don't care whether that will include 200 or 700 of America's Greatest Men and Women, which is the title of the book—I do know this, that for the ordinary, active and alert business man—I will certainly say far more for the student or the literary man, or the politician or the statesman—for all these I will say it will be simply the most valuable and the most remarkable book produced in modern history The wonder is that some one has not thought of it before. Yet no one seems to have done so since the days of Plutarch. Plutarch knew something. That shrewd old fellow knew that all who would get out of the drift, all who would accomplish great things, wanted to know every detail of the lives of those who had better luck or more courage or a broader brain than their fellows; but I am no authority on these points. I only know that there is produced a second Plutarch's Lives, that its biographies are shrewd, graphic and curt, and written without bias and without prejudice. I only know that there was a Plutarch—God bless the old fellow—and that there is this modern work.

This is the work I am going to give to my boy. I am going to make him read it thoroughly. The work is announced as consisting of 16 Parts, with 16 pages and 16 photographs in each part, and when bound, the whole series will make a great volume of 256 pages, the like of which has never been equaled. It is the story of the personal character of the men and women who are making the nation's history at this particular time. What a work this is! Do you imagine that I would miss it for my boy, or, incidentally, for myself?

HE WRITES HAPPY SONGS.

Charles F. Pidgin, Whose Popular Airs Are Everywhere Sung.

What a tiresome world it would be if there were no songs in it.

One of the most versatile song writers is Charles F. Pidgin, of Cambridge, Mass., whose portrait is here given. Everybody knows his songs. Schoolboys whistle them and sober business men go about humming them.

When a writer of popular songs is tired and worn out he cannot do good work—nor can any one. All over the world, physicians of every school prescribe Paine's celery compound where overwork and anxiety have brought down the tone of the nervous system. Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., of Dartmouth college, the eminent discoverer of Paine's celery compound, devoted the most fruitful years of his career to the study of blood and nerves.

Very soon after taking this remarkable remedy the circulation is favorably affected; there is a marked desire for hearty food, the heart's action becomes tranquilized and strong, and the nervous and digestive systems are harmonized and invigorated and sleeplessness disappears, thus stopping the waste and staying the progress of disease.

As long as waste continues, disease continues, and the first step in the recovery of many a person's health has been the first bottle of Paine's celery compound.

Mr. Pidgin says that he used Paine's celery compound as a nerve tonic and laxative. He was not sick, only "tired" from press of business. Its use put him in good condition again. "I recommend it," he says, to literary friends."

Weariness, lack of energy and despondency are more a matter of nerves and brain than of the muscles. Paine's celery compound makes new, richly vitalized blood go briskly through the nerves, brain and every important organ. There soon comes an end to tired, worn out feelings, loss of appetite and sleeplessness.

Thousands of men struggling under great responsibilities, anxious, overworked mothers and wives and shop girls who are forced to stand on their feet all day long, build up their strength and nervous energy with Paine's celery compound. It rids the system of the languor and lack of energy that follows a bloodless condition.

A BRILLIANT RECORD.

Regents Examination Report of the Wallkill Academy June, 1894.

The following is a complete list of all the classes instructed in Wallkill Academy during the past term in preparation for Regent's examination.

It shows a record the equal of which it will be hard to find in the State:

	No. instructed.	No. passed.
Aeneid,	17	16
Eclogues,	9	2
Caesar,	16	15
Latin, 1st year.	10	9

91 per cent.

Including the 159 pupils from other schools who came to take examinations, of whom 99 passed, the totals are 819 tried and 686 passed.

Last year in June the record was 761 tried and 593 passed.

The average per cent. obtained throughout the state, including all the academics, in the various examinations, during last year was: Spelling 63, Elementary English 53, Advanced English 54, German, 1st year, 56; Arithmetic 44, Algebra 50, English Composition 75, U S. History 45, Rhetoric 60, English Lit. 73 American Literature 65, Latin, 1st year, 30; Caesar 39, Virgil 73, Physics 30, Chemistry 47, Botany 60, etc.

The average of the school is by far the best it has ever had. By virtue of it Middletown should stand even higher in rank among cities and towns of the state than it has heretofore. The report of the secretary of the regents bulletin No. 23, shows that it now ranks 20th in population, 21st in number of academic scholars, and 18th in the number of certificates gained by passing Regent's examinations, on which basis is apportioned the literature fund to academies.

There is no city or town in south-eastern New York, south of Albany, that ranks with it.

Its march toward the front rank has been rapid and steady. It will, as a result of these examinations, stand higher yet, though of course it can never pass the great cities with their larger numbers of academic students, provided their instruction remains tolerably efficient.

The earnestness of the pupils in their school work and the competency and efficiency of our corps of instructors have made these results possible.

The active and hearty co-operation of parents with teachers is a no less important aid.

It is a record of which the people of the city may well be proud.

Closing Quotations of the New York and Philadelphia Exchanges

NEW YORK, June 22.—There was increased activity in the stock market today, but it was due to a movement which was communicated to a goodly portion of the list and which was based on the continuance of the gold export movement, the rather bad showing of the Vanderbilt road and the absence of buyers to take up the stock offered. SATURDAY, JUNE 23, 1894.

Reuben F. Kolb, the "Jefferson Democratic" candidate, for Governor of Alabama, is in New York appealing to Republicans for funds with which to prosecute his campaign against the regular Democratic candidate.

"Idiot baiting as a fine art" is the very effective heading which the Herald gives to its account of the evidence of shameful brutalities practiced in the Ward's Island Asylum, which was taken, yesterday, by the State Commission in Lunacy.

Judge Alfred B. Beers, of Bridgeport Conn., who sued the Hamburgh-American line for $10,000 damages for detention at Quarantine on the Normannia, during the cholera scare of two years ago, was awarded $900 yesterday, by Judge Brown of the United States District Court. Like the Middletown party who were passengers on the Normannia, Judge Beers was induced to take passage on the ship by the assurances of the London agents of the company that she would carry no steerage passengers.

The flood of petitions which has been poured in on the constitutional convention shows how easy it is to secure signatures to such documents. Very few of the signers of these petitions knew much or cared much what they were petitioning for; the fact that some one asked for their signatures was sufficient. The petitions do not of necessity mean that the old constitution is sadly in need of amendment. It is all right in most of its essentials and a great deal better document to tie to than it would be if tinkered and fixed over according to the plans of those who want it shaped to meet their own peculiar views.

A great deal of editorial rot is being printed concerning the verdict in the Halliday case, and newspapers, far enough away from the scene of the crime and the trial to know nothing of the sentiment of the vicinage, see in the verdict of guilty a popular protest against the overdone plea of insanity in murder cases, a rejection by the jury of expert medical testimony and a great many other things not apparent to those who know the temper of the people of Sullivan county. There was no doubt in any mind that Mrs. Halliday committed the three murders and sane or insane nearly every one believed that she should be punished. Every one felt that the world would be a safer place if the murderess was out of it and when the large panel of jurors went to Monticello to attend the trial, they were so full of the idea that blood could only be atoned for with blood, that there was no room for anything else in their minds. Not that they were consciously prejudiced against the woman, but they had lived so long in the atmosphere of belief in her guilt and the necessity of punishing her that it may well be doubted if any amount of evidence as to her mental condition would have induced the "twelve good men and true," who filled the jury box, to have found her guilty on the ground of insanity, and thus have made it possible for her to again [illegible] with the risk that she might [illegible] slaughters if the thirst for blood should again possess her. The [illegible] of Dr. Mann that the woman was shamming insanity furnished an excuse for the verdict, but even without his testimony it is almost certain that the same conclusion would have been reached.

BITTEN BY DOGS.

Two Boys Bitten by Ugly Dogs—One of the Dogs Killed

A boy named Fred Holden was bitten on the leg, yesterday, by a dog belonging to Ed. Tompkins, of East Main street. The boy's injuries are not at all serious.

Lewis Levens, twelve years old, was bitten about noon, yesterday, in the calf of his leg by a dog belonging to James Johnson, a well known colored resident of East avenue. The bite was not a bad one. The dog, which has for some time had the reputation of being a vicious brute, was complained of and an order for its killing was issued, which was executed, last night.

Personal.

GRADUATING EXERCISES.

THE FIFTY-SECOND ANNIVERSARY OF WALLKILL ACADEMY.

The Casino Crowded—The Exercises of a Very Interesting Character—Orations and Essays. Music and Song—Presentation of Diplomas and the Talcott Scholarship Prizes.

The fifty-second annual commencement exercises of Wallkill Academy took place at the Casino, last evening. The building was crowded to the doors, and as the heat was intense, it may be regarded as a compliment to those who participated in the exercises that the audience sat patiently through it all.

The stage was decorated with palms, behind which sat the members of the Board of Education, Supt. Tuthill, the academy teachers, Rev. F. A. Heath and Dr. S. H. Talcott. Over the drop curtain was the class motto: "Age Quod Agis," which means "Do what you are doing," or "Finish what you are about," a most excellent motto for young people just entering upon the active duties of life.

THE GRADUATES.

The following are the members of the class of '94:

Regents and Wallkill Academy diplomas—May Harriet Corwin, Claribel Gardner, May E. Purvis, Nora A. Boose, Merit Emmet Dunning, Frank Halsey Finn, Richard Knight, Abram Lipfeld.

Wallkill diplomas—Frank Tannery Chambers.

The exercises were opened with an overture by Boescher's orchestra, followed with an invocation by Rev. F. A. Heath, pastor of the First Baptist Church. The orchestra then played Eilenberg's overture, entitled "Life a Dream."

"NATIONAL PROBLEMS."

Next came an oration by Richard Knight. Subject, "National Problems."

The young man spoke clearly and distinctly, but with little attempt at oratorical flourish. He treated his subject admirably, however, and seemed to have a clear comprehension of the serious problems that now confront the nation. With the enthusiasm of youth he pointed out the principle evils that he would uproot at once. He would annihilate the trusts, crush the rings and bosses, restrict emmigration, give the people a pure ballot and work other reforms which, though badly needed, we fear he will never live to see brought about unless the rising generation is wiser and better than their fathers.

"HEROINES OF IVANHOE."

The next number was an essay by Miss May Harriet Corwin, entitled "Heroines of Ivanhoe." The composition was excellent and the production showed the result of careful reading of this work of Sir Walter Scott and an intelligent study of the several characters. Unfortunately Miss Corwin's voice was not strong enough for those in the rear of the room to hear her distinctly.

A NATURAL ORATOR.

"Moses as a Law Giver" was the subject of an oration by Abram Lipfeld. This young man is a born orator. He has a good voice and was apparently as much at ease on the platform as one accustomed to public speaking, and barring the absence of gestures, where they would have added much to the effect of his delivery, his effort was a very creditable one. His study of the life, character and work of Moses has evidently been thorough.

Following this oration, two of Middletown's favorite singers, Mrs. C. H. Sweezy and Miss Julia Wickham, sang Mendelssohn's "Greeting," as only they can sing it, and the audience showed its appreciation by vigorous applause.

HISTORY IN VERSE.

Was the subject of an essay by Miss Claribel Gardner. This young lady has not a strong voice, but she spoke so distinctly and deliberately that every word was heard in all parts of the house. Her paper was carefully prepared and showed her familiarity with the poets of all ages, from the days of the Psalmist down to our own Longfellow.

LOUIS KOSSUTH.

The next number was an oration by Frank Tannery Chambers, entitled, "Louis Kossuth." He acquitted himself with credit in his delivery and his familiarity with the work of this noblest character of his day, showed a close study of the history of Hungary's patriot and statesman.

POWERS OF MUSICAL HARMONY.

Was the subject of the essay by Miss May Eva Purvis. It would be difficult to give any intelligible idea of this excellent paper in the brief space at our command, without detracting from its merits. It was a finished production, excellent in composition, thorough in its treatment of the subject, and read in a clear, distinct voice, and with a gracefulness of manner that was charming.

A FINE ORATION.

After a violin solo by Prof. Roescher, Frank Halsey Finn delivered an oration on "Cæsar." Mr. Finn has a strong, full voice which, if kept in training, will be worth a fortune to him, either in the pulpit, at the bar or on the rostrum. He has not neglected the cultivation of his elocutionary powers nor is he deficient in the graces of oratory. The only criticism we can offer is that he overlooked the people in the orchestra circle and spoke only to the galleries and the loges. Cæsar is evidently his ideal of manhood, for his oration was a fulsome eulogy of that great Roman.

ANCIENT EGYPT.

Number thirteen, on the programme was an essay on "Ancient Egypt," by Miss Nora Aldrich Rosa. This was a very creditable production on which the young lady must have spent much time and effort in the study of Egyptian history.

THE CLOSING ORATION.

Merit Emmet Dunning, was the last of the graduates to appear on the platform. His subject was: "Results of the American Revolution" and right well did he handle it. While others of the class have been delving in ancient lore he has been studying the history of his own country.

PRESENTATION OF DIPLOMAS.

Mrs. Sweezy and Miss Wickham sang a double number, "A Streamlet of Flowers" and "Nearest and Dearest," and then Superintendent Tuthill called the graduates upon the platform and introduced them to President H. W. Wiggins of the Board of Education, who, after a brief but graceful speech full of wise counsel and kindly advice, presented them with their diplomas.

THE DR. TALCOTT PRIZES.

Dr. S. H. Talcott, Medical Superintendent of the State Hospital, then arose and said that, with the idea of stimulating the graduating class to a closer application to their studies, he some time ago decided to offer a prize for the best scholarship to the girls and a similar prize to the boys of the class. The records of the year showed that Miss May Harriet Corwin and Mr. Richard Knight were the prize winners. He said he had concluded to give gold as prizes and turning to Miss Corwin handed her a ten dollar gold piece, which he had carried through all his travels in Europe and named many of the historic spots he had visited with the coin in his possession, which will doubtless add to its value as one of Miss Corwin's possessions. He humorously added at the close of his speech: "Do with it as you please; keep it or apply it as a thirty or forty per cent. payment on a new hat."

To Mr. Knight he presented another gold Eagle, which he said had not the associations of the one presented to Miss Corwin. He gave it, he said, not for what had been done but as an inspiration to accomplish greater things and hoped that he would always advocate an honest dollar, stand by the American Eagle and uphold the flag of his country.

When the prize winners were announced there was evidence of general satisfaction by the loud applause.

Each of the graduates received bouquets and baskets of flowers from admiring friends. These were carried upon the stage at the conclusion of each oration or essay by little Ruth Knight and Lawrence Knapp. Several bouquets were thrown from the loges at the feet of Mr. Finn when he concluded his oration.

Mrs. J. F. Dusenberry accompanied the orchestra and the singers upon the piano.

The exercises were concluded with a benediction by Rev. Mr. Heath.

After the conclusion of the exercises the seats were cleared from the room, and the graduates, the class of '93, class of '95, and a few of their friends engaged in dancing, which was kept up until after midnight.

A DEATH FROM LOCKJAW

George W Shepard Died at Thrall Hospital from Tetanus, Caused, It Is Believed, by a Lightning Stroke.

Mr. George W. Shepard died at Thrall Hospital, at 10.40 last night, aged forty years.

On Saturday last, Mr. Shepard, who conducted a garden farm on Mosbegen avenue, adjoining the State Hospital grounds, was in his barn with one of his young children. A terrific thunder shower was in progress, and the lightning struck in the vicinity of the barn. Mr. Shepard afterwards told his wife that he saw the bolt strike between him and the child. He was taken with a congestive chill shortly after the storm, and the physician who was called recognizing symptoms of tetanus, advised his removal to Thrall Hospital. Everything possible was done for the unfortunate man, but he sank steadily until his death as above.

Mr. Shepard is survived by his wife and two children, Curtis, aged three, and Arthur, aged five. Also by his mother, Mrs. Frank Brooks, of Binghamton; a sister, Mrs. Sarah Courtright, of Binghamton, and one brother, Sylvanus Shepard, of Oregon.

A short service was held at the undertaking establishment of Knapp & Merritt, at 11 o'clock this morning, and the remains were taken to Binghamton on Erie train 1.

A PECULIAR EXPLOSION.

A Gas Cylinder Bursts and a Portion Crashes Through a Car.

There was a singular explosion at the O. and W. freight depot, about 1 o'clock, this afternoon. The report was louder than an ordinary cannon, and startled everybody in the neighborhood, many of whom at first thought a boiler had exploded.

Investigation, however, revealed the fact that a large iron cylinder, charged with carbonic acid gas, such as are used to furnish the pressure for soda fountains and lager beer kegs, one of about fifteen, belonging to Smith & Sweeney, that were lying on the platform, had burst. It split in two, lengthwise, one half crashing through the side of a freight car, standing near. The other piece of the cylinder passed under the car and did no damage except to the platform. As the cylinders are made of iron three-eighths of an inch thick, and the broken pieces were twisted into all manner of shapes, the force required to cause it to twist may be imagined.

The cylinders were lying in the sun and after the explosion everybody kept as far away from them as possible. Fortunately, no one was near at the time, except one man, who did not happen to be in range of the flying pieces.

The important experiences of others are interesting. The following is no exception. "I had been troubled with heart disease 30 years, much of that time very seriously. For five years I was treated by one physician continuously. I was in business, but obliged to retire on account of my health. A physician told my friends that I could not live a month. A TERRIBLE FIGHT.

It Was In the Stokeroom of the Steamer New York on Her Recent Trip.

When the big New York was cutting her way through a thick bank of fog Friday night a few miles off the Hook, Third Engineer Ramm climbed down into the stokeroom and told Chief Fireman Hume that he should get up more steam. The engineer spoke in such a commanding tone that the chief fireman got nettled and replied that, in his opinion, the steam pressure under which the ship was then working was sufficient for the required speed.

The engineer became enraged and with a curse grabbed a 12 foot poker, the handle of which was protruding from one of the immense furnaces, and was about to run the redhot iron through the body of the chief fireman when Fireman Wagner threw himself upon him from behind and bore him down, thus saving the life of Hume.

Then commenced a terrible life and death struggle between Wagner and the engineer. The men were on a platform from which the coal is shoveled into the furnaces. Both men are of powerful build, with muscles of steel. They gripped each other where they lay and rolled over and over. Each tried hard to push or roll the other into one of the blazing furnaces. About 40 coal passers and firemen stood around, but could not interfere, as the chief fireman told them to keep aloof. Wagner had the advantage of being naked to the waist, while the engineer's movements were somewhat hampered by his close fitting uniform.

Wagner finally managed to get hold of his adversary's throat, and he tightened his grip until the engineer's eyes bulged from their sockets. Then he let him go. Ramm was almost dead. A bucketful of water was dashed into his face, and he revived sufficiently to drag himself to the elevator and be hoisted on deck.

Two hours later Fourth Engineer Peters came down the stokeroom and told Wagner that one of the machinists wanted to see him. The fireman went up to one of the coal bunkers, where the machinist was said to be waiting. Here Wagner was attacked by Peters and knocked down and almost beaten to death. He says that the first blow struck was by Peters, who hit him on the right temple with a brass knuckler, in consequence of which he almost lost consciousness. Then the two fell upon him mercilessly.

Wagner made no complaint to the captain or any of the officers, believing, he said, that he would not get justice against a superior officer. He went before United States Commissioner Shields when the New York came into port and swore out a warrant against the two engineers setting forth the facts related. They were arrested by United States Marshal Jacobus and Deputy Marshal Solomon. Their examination was postponed until June 29.—New York World.

ABOUT WATERWORKS.

The Costly Schemes Which Have Been Carried Out to Give Good Supply.

At a cost of $12,500,000 Manchester is just completing a system of water supply by which Thirlmere, one of the English lakes in Cumberland county, 95 miles away, has been dammed and water supplied to the city of the best quality in quantities sufficient for all probable needs. Manchester has also completed a ship canal to Liverpool, so that the largest vessels in the mercantile marine can lie at her docks. The City of Mexico at a cost of $10,000,000 is just completing a drainage system that will carry the overflow of the great basin to the sea, thus warding off overflows and resultant malaria.

Greece has just completed the Corinthian canal at enormous expense, by which a short cut from Venice and Trieste is afforded to Athens and Constantinople. It has cost many millions and was first undertaken before the Christian era. Austria has just completed the destruction of the "iron chains of the Danube" at a cost of many millions, a work begun in the days of the Cæsars, which is of inestimable commercial value to the city. These are a few of the great works undertaken seriously in recent years and brought to a successful conclusion. Each one will prove a profitable investment. They have been carried out on business principles. There are several problems before the people of this country, which ought also to be considered on business principles. These problems are important and can all be solved if courage, enterprise and sagacity are used. They will fail if old fogy notions are allowed to rule as they have for generations past.—Fire and Water.

HE NEVER FOUND IT OUT.

Pathetic Tale of a Lost Pocketbook and a Charming Gown.

"What a charming gown that is!" cried the young woman with the picture hat. "I only wish I had one like it, but I never could afford it."

"Neither could I, my dear, if I hadn't lost my pocketbook."

"Good gracious, prosperity has affected your mind! I don't see how."

"Well, you see, Albert gave me the money to buy a gown. I told him it was not half enough, but he protested it was every cent he could afford. I cried for two days about it, and as he didn't give in then I concluded he was really telling the truth, so I started out to do the best I could. I went to every dry goods store in town and never worked so hard in my life, but I couldn't find what I wanted at the price. Finally in despair I decided to take the first piece I had looked at, and oh, Laura, imagine my horror to find when the clerk had cut off that pattern that I had lost my pocketbook!"

"How perfectly awful!"

"Wasn't it? I thought I should die. I knew I would have to tell Albert all about it some time, so I rushed around to his office to tell him in the presence of strangers, when he could not say anything unkind. I wept and accused myself of carelessness, when he said he would [illegible], for I couldn't remember where I had it last nor how much money was in it. His partner was there, and he seemed to feel so sorry for me—he's an old bachelor—that Albert didn't scold me at all, and actually gave me the money the second time."

"And you went and got the gown?"

"Well, no. I had changed my mind about that piece of goods, it had such a cheap look, so I just went home to think it over."

"But you never got that gown cheap?"

"No, I didn't. The fact is, I found my pocketbook on the hall table where I had left it when I took out my car fare to put in my glove. I am so careful of money that I don't like to display much in the cars."

"And what did Albert say when he found it out?"

"He wouldn't have said a great deal if he had found it out, but he never did. I knew he would scold me for carelessness if I told him, so I just kept all the money and bought my gown. I'm so glad you like it, dear."—Chicago Tribune.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

RIPPLES.

Some of the doctors have discovered that high heeled shoes cause blindness. This ought to be an eye opener for women, but it is not likely to be one.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The only apparent effect of advanced civilization seems to be that children begin to worry at an earlier age.—Atchison Globe.

"Now I'm getting the run of the thing," as the policeman said when he took after the dude.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The horse thief generally keeps a running account of his doings.—New Orleans Picayune.

A cat is said to have nine lives. This may account for the nine muses.—Philadelphia Record.

The boy who is continually carrying on in school doesn't carry off much when the honors are distributed.—Yonkers Statesman.

American Little Girl (to her mamma)—What is a dead letter, please? Mamma—One that has been given to your father to post.—Jewish Messenger.

It is estimated that at least 784 kisses are exchanged at the Union depot every day. When you think that most of the kissers are women, it is terrible to think of such a needless waste.—Atchison Globe.

The author of the poem on another page is a personal friend of the editor. We print it as a proof that nothing can break the sacred silken tie of friendship.—Kansas City Star.

She was a tired boarding house keeper who, being asked if she took transients, replied, "No, except my servants."—Truth.

In arranging a date for a lawn party always pick out one when almanacs and weather predictions say it will be disagreeable and stormy.—Atchison Globe.

"I don't believe half of our rich men know when they are well off." "Humph! How'd you get that idea?" "Been looking over the assessment roll."—Buffalo Courier.

"Wonder what kind of an entry old man Golden made of the money he gave his daughter when she married that nobleman?" "Don't know, but presume he charged it as paid on account."—Atlanta Constitution.

If you are inclined to underrate the importance of small things, consider how much insomnia there is in one fly.—Chicago Herald.

Here is a gem of literary composition from a recent historical novel: "The gas lamps not having been invented at that time, rendered the streets of the city still darker."—Youth's Companion.

It is a great deal easier to believe the returned angler's story when he sends you round a goodly portion of the fish.—Somerville Journal.

It is the quiet man who looks as though he might pass the hat at the temperance meeting who develops the biggest yell when the umpire decides in favor of the home team.—Minneapolis Journal.

There is no pen powerful enough to describe the feelings of a man on the occasion when for the first time he goes out walking with his first wife, wearing his first plug hat.—Somerville Journal.

Sometimes there are instances in life like those in story books. An Atchison girl engaged herself to a carpenter thinking he was poor and discovered on the eve of her wedding day that he had $50 in the bank. He had not told her, wishing to be loved for himself alone.—Atchison Globe.

Oxford has made Captain Mahan of the Chicago a doctor of civil law. Wouldn't a doctor of canon law be better?—Philadelphia Times.

A young lieutenant going out to India with his regiment, writing home about the country, says: "The climate is magnificent, but a lot of young fellows come out here and drink and eat and eat and drink and die, and then write home and say it was the climate that did it."—San Francisco Argonaut.

A little 3 year-old girl while her mother was trying to get her to sleep became interested in some noise. She was told that it was caused by a cricket, when she sagely observed: "Mamma, I think he ought to be oiled."—Pearson's Weekly.

So many little shoes have been given a young mother in Atchison that she became irritable and informed the giver of the last pair that her baby wasn't a centipede, thank you.—Atchison Globe.

A Logical Conclusion.

Two of those women who believe that women should have the same privileges as men everywhere were talking over the matter in a car yesterday. Pretty soon an elderly man who had been both amused and exasperated by their advanced ideas, turned to the one nearest him and said:

"You believe that women should do about the same as men in nearly everything, don't you?"

"Yes."

"That they should dress pretty much the same?"

"Yes."

"And perhaps carry canes?"

"Yes."

Then the elderly man leaned over and in the most kindly manner said:

"Have a cigar?"—Philadelphia Call.

A Difference of Views.

"I'm almost afraid, Miss Squeers," said the impecunious young man who had taken her to an after theater supper for which he had been hoarding money for months, "I'm almost afraid to ask you to eat such a meal as this just before going to bed."

"Oh, never mind," replied Miss Squeers, smiling pleasantly. "If it doesn't answer, we can easily order some more, you know."—Chicago Record.

The Usual Way.

"Now," said Schoeppenstedt to the man he was talking to, "I'll explain the real basis of this whole matter to you in just about two words."

And inside of half an hour after that Schoeppenstedt had got through talking, and his hearer got away.—Somerville Journal.

Depends.

"Sir," demanded the queen, "if I make you minister, do you think you will keep your head?"

The subject laughed nervously.

"I would prefer," he answered, "to have your majesty express an opinion as to that."—Detroit Tribune.

Sure to Agree.

New Girl (timidly)—I s'pose you are a fine cook, mum?

Young Mistress—Bless me, no. I don't know a thing about it.

New Girl (relieved)—Then we'll get on famously, mum. I don't either.—New York Weekly.

COURT PROCEEDINGS.

THE CITY OF NEWBURGH MUST PAY $5,500 DAMAGES.

Matilda Clark's Suit for Damages for Being Run down by a Drunken Ash Cart Driver—Permanently Injured—Other Cases.

GOSHEN, June 22.—The jury in the case of Strader against the Erie rendered a verdict for plaintiff for $2,-[illegible].

At the afternoon session the first case called was that of Matilda Clark vs. the city of Newburgh. J. M. Gardner appeared for plaintiff and C. L. Waring, with the assistance of Herbert Godney, Esq., appeared for the city. The jury selected was as follows:

Stephen Wolf, Middletown; Floyd Greenleaf, Mount Hope; H. K. Merritt, Blooming Grove; Clarence Knight, Monroe; J. B. Conklin, Warwick; Geo. M. Dutcher, Newburgh City; Herman Butts, Middletown; R. A. Conklin, Deerpark; S. A. J. Conklin, Deerpark; Robert Boare, Montgomery; R. J. Crawford, Crawford; Townsend Drew, Highlands.

The facts in the case are briefly these, according to Mr. Gardner: On December 2nd, at Broadway and Lander street, plaintiff was run into by a team driven by an employe of the Newburgh Street Department, and used in carrying ashes. The driver was in a drunken condition and could not sit straight in his seat. The horses stepped on the plaintiff and the heavy wheels ran over her, injuring her so badly that she is paralyzed in the left leg to such an extent that a knife may be run in her leg without pain on her part.

PLAINTIFF'S TESTIMONY.

The first witness called in the Newburgh case was the plaintiff, Matilda Clark. She is twenty-one years of age and has lived in Newburgh twelve years. She had to be assisted to the stand. Her story was that on December 2nd, last, she was walking down Broadway in the city of Newburgh. She was engaged in conversation when she reached Lander street; was about crossing the street when she was suddenly struck by a team and knocked down. She felt the horses' legs and feet after she fell and also felt a wagon wheel pass over her legs at the knees. Her friend was knocked down, too. Messrs. Leach, O'Brien and Lynn helped her up and took her to Mr. Johnston's drug store. She was given something then and was afterwards taken home in a carriage or ambulance. Dr. Harris was at once summoned and he prescribed for her. Dr. Wilson was called December 4th; he put her limbs in splints; other doctors subsequently came. On the second or third day after the injury the pain in her limbs and back increased. This continued for five or six weeks, during which time she was confined to her bed. She described her present condition as being a pitiable one; she still has many pains and has not been able to walk on her left leg since the injury. She also is injured internally. Up to the time she was injured she worked in a factory and had made from $10 to $15 every two weeks. It was five months after the accident before she went out of the house and she has been out but seven times since then, and then only when accompanied by some one.

At the time of the accident she was accompanied by Miss Alice Wilkinson. She heard the noise of the approaching team, but was knocked down before she knew what it was, can not walk as well now as she could two months ago.

A DRUNKEN DRIVER.

Daniel D. Ward, the next witness, testified that he was the Assistant Superintendent of Streets in Newburgh, at the time of the accident. He said he saw Daly, the driver of the cart in question, at noon of that day and that Daly was drunk. He said he could hardly navigate.

Alexander Leslie testified that he was Superintendent of Streets and that on that day Daly was in the employ of the city.

THE HORSES WERE GOING FAST.

William Leach, the next witness, saw the accident. He was within three feet of it and was about to cross Lander street. He heard the rattling of the wagon coming down Broadway and when the horses turned into Lander street Daly had hold of the lines which were slack. He said Daly did not seem to be trying to drive the horses. There was another man in the wagon with Daly and he grabbed him, Daly, around the body.

OTHER WITNESSES OF THE ACCIDENT.

Frank Shields witnessed the accident from the east corner of Lander street. The horses were going quite lively, he said, and he believed Daly was drunk. Shields assisted the injured to the drug store.

David Lynn testified just as did a previous witness. He had to [illegible] to save himself from being [illegible].

Samuel Bowe heard a yell and saw [illegible] of the occurrence. He said the [illegible] were hanging loose and [illegible] Daly did not appear to try to [illegible] the horses.

William O'Brien said he saw the [illegible] the wagon with Daly [illegible], and that the team was going at [illegible] gait. They stopped about 200 feet from the scene of the accident.

C. L. Brown, supervisor, knew Miss Clark before the accident and said she was then a good healthy girl.

Dr. Wilson testified that he had attended plaintiff professionally. The small bone of her left leg was broken and her eighth rib on left side. The broken leg was placed in a plaster cast. Her left leg is shrunken and she is paralyzed. Will grow worse instead of better.

Drs. Burke and Sweeney confirmed Dr. Wilson's testimony.

THE DEFENSE.

Mr. Waring opened for the defense. William Daly, driver of the cart and William Steen, his companion swore that the team was going slowly when the accident occurred.

After the evening recess Drs. Harris and Gleason testified that the atrophy of the leg might be due to its having remained too long in a plaster cast.

There were no symptoms of an incurable disease.

At 12 o'clock the jury rendered a verdict for plaintiff for $5,500.

SATURDAY MORNING.

When court opened the case of John W. Hasbrouck vs. Silas H. Dickinson was called. The question at issue is the title to a few feet of land in Middletown, on which defendant has built a house.

Motion for a new trial in Birch vs. Loyd denied with $10 costs.

The Hasbrouck case is still on, at 3 o'clock.

The other jurors were discharged until Monday morning, at 11 o'clock.

WHEELMEN'S RACE MEET.

Middletown Wheelmen Arranging for a Meet on the Campbell Track.

The Middletown Wheelmen, at a special meeting held at the Commercial Hotel, Wednesday night, decided to hold their race meet at the Campbell track in this city, on the afternoon of July 28th. The club will make this, its first meet, one long to be remembered. The prizes offered are of sufficient value to attract the attention of some of the best riders in the country. The management of the affair will be placed in the hands of experienced cyclists, and it is expected that the large crowds which have been attending wheelmen's race meetings throughout the country will be present at this one. The club has appointed a committee of ten members, who will look after the management of the meet in every detail, and every precaution will be taken which will add to the comfort and convenience of the public.

WHERE AN ARC LIGHT IS NOT NEEDED.

Not the Business of the City to Light the Dancing Platform in Miller's Orchard.

The Committee on Street Lighting, Thursday night, reported favorably to the Common Council on an application for an arc lamp at the end of the electric railway on North street. There are many other places where arc lamps are needed much more than at the extreme limit of the town, and if the city can afford to put in more lights they should be put in some of the dark spots where there is a population to receive the benefit.

There is no need of an arc lamp at the point named, unless it be to light up the dancing platform in Miller's orchard.

WHIPPED AND DUCKED BY WHITE CAPS

Livingston Manor's Regulators of Public Morals Take a Hard Drinker in Hand.

From the Livingston Manor Ensign.

The White Caps, of this place, all masked, saw fit to get in some of their best work on a habitual drunkard, Pat Edwards, Saturday night. Ten of the White Caps assembled at midnight, at the depot and took charge of the offending member of society. After running the gauntlet of two rows of men, who plied switches unmercifully he was taken to a mill race just outside the village and repeatedly held under the water barely allowing him time between each dip to breathe. He was then taken out and told to start for home on a run, but not moving as fast as the White Caps thought he should, he was again taken by them and thrown into the pond, after which he made excellent time out of the village.

Wheelmen at Bloomingburgh.

The Middletown Wheelmen took a spin to Bloomingburgh, last night. They enjoyed a delightful ride and were royally entertained by Landlord Schubert, of the Shorter House, who gave them an elegant supper and refused to accept any compensation.

FACE LIKE A BURN

Bloody Water Oozed Out Constantly. No Peace Day or Night. Doctors Failed. Cured by Cuticura.

My child's disease, which was the worst kind of eczema, started on one cheek like a ringworm. It [illegible] and itched so [illegible] [illegible] day. Then it started on the other cheek and [illegible] as a piece of beefsteak, like a burn where you would rub all the skin, and bloody water oozed out constantly. His sufferings were terrible I know, although he was but six months old and could not tell how he suffered. I used [illegible] he would not scratch, then he would rub his poor little cheeks on his shoulders to relieve the awful itching. I had as good a doctor as was in Philadelphia, but he failed to relieve him. I read of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and at once purchased them. Strange to say that very night he rested without scratching his face, and from that on he improved and soon was entirely cured. I would like anyone suffering from this terrible disease to see my boy, who is so lovable just now. His complexion is as clear and smooth as can be. This is an unsolicited testimonial, and every word is true. I thank God for my child's recovery, and I thank the manufacturer of CUTICURA.
